The Standing Orders having been suspended. the Acting Attorney General moved the second was to ratify all that had been done by the Saniend by the morning paper on the 19th May. The the | Sanitary Board met at once and drafted byelaws hat to cope with the spread of disease, deal with the with full powers. There was, however, no definite authority for the Board to so delegate its powers to a committee of three, and this Bill was intended to supply such authority. On the 14th May there was an alarming increase of plague, and further byclaws were made, providing inter alla for meeting the expenses and recovering the costs from the landlord. It was not then certain whether the Board had power to do all this by byclaws, but it certainly was possible by Ordinance; but the Government had agreed to abandon the proposal to mulct landlords in the expense of removing and maintaining evicted tenants. The penalty clause was comulative, according to the number of days during which a byelaw was disobeyed by anyone. The eviction clause would have to be made retrospective, as some houses had already been closed by the authorities. conclusion no words of praise could be too high for Mr. Francis, who besides his arduous work on the emergency committee of the Sanitary Board had been of invaluable assistance in draf ing this Bill, and had promised to give whatever further help he possibly could. The streets of Hongkong are rapidly assuming as deserted an appearance as the once busy Rialto, and in the course of a week or two providing the plague still continues to flourish on these festive shores, chairs and rickshas will be few and far between on our main thoroughfares, and procurable only at exorbitant rates, Instead of there being over goo of each of these classes of vehicles licensed this month licenses for only about 200 of each kind were

As previously stated in thece columns, fifteen days' quarantine is imposed on all arriving at Manila from Hongkong. It is therefore surprising to learn from Mersis. Warner, Blodgett & Co's circular of the 28th ultimo, just to hand from that port, that the Japanese at amer Nagato Maru received fifteen days quarantine, sithough she had not touched at Hongkong. The reason assigned is that "Amoy, her last port of call, does not observe proper amiliary preciutions against infection."

The Vos Española of June 5th says that two Chinese passengers died on the Sunghlang on the way from Hongkong to Manila : the captain did not report them on arrival, but the sanitary authorities discovered the bodies and the steamer was at once sent into quarantine for twenty days. The health of Manila is reported excellent, and no case of plague has yet been known.

THE PROGRESS OF JAPAN.

Impanese statesmen had the astuteness to see that the material they had at their disposition would afford but a very poor and unstable basis for the execution of the plans which the progress of the world had thrust upon them, and that competent foreign instructors were needed in every branch of the Government and its Departments. The most liberal terms were offered, and the choice of those who were induced to accept them, it must be said, reflected credit upon those who engaged them. The best models of foreign institutions were closely imitated, and the imitations and adaptation prov. d a fair success for which the Japanese alone got the credit, and venal hands were not wanting to beat the drum to call the attention of a somewhat indifferent world to a state of affairs that had become matter of more or less ancient history with it The inordinate national vanity of the Japanese and their insatiate thirst for flattery even of the grossest kind, made them look upon every honest critic as an enemy of Japan, a belie which was sedulously nourished by foreign writers who were paid from the secret service fund. The foreign instructors who were the motive power and balance wheels of the new institutions were lost sight of their names never appeared in connection with any of their plans that had been executed, to the people at large they were unknown, and thus it was a very comfortable expedient to ignore them altogether and see the the entire progress to some the littible impulse of the people,-to the genius of the nation, twho is now supposed to keep an eyelon Mr. Oll Kontain." Wherever foreigners, however, were removed or deprived of any active control and influence, which galled their former purils, who soon believed themselves wiserthan their teachers, the inevitable consequence was disorde, confusion and disorganisation, as nothing is more insufferable to the Japanese mind than to always do the same thing at the same time and in the same way, and we believe that even the highest power in the land would

"thing that 'could not be belped." The Parliament, also an imitation, both in spirit and in its practical working foreign to the Japanese mind, and involving an iron consequence of action and an unalterable fixity of purp are, in fact the existence of a body of men of ! liberal education with a sprinkling of leaders, suffered under the disadvantage that it could employ no foreigners, so that it had to stand and be jud ed on its own merits. It is weary work to follow such an invertebrate body as the Japanese Failiament in its gyrations, one day like a lion opening its jaws with a roar, and thicatening to swallow the Cabinet, the next day cowed by a threat, snapping and snatling about some bone of party contention. Painfully transpare t efforte have been made to represent the Radical party as supporters of the Government, but that support seems to amount to no more than that some of its members can be got to turn the scale upon the occasion Both the Radical party, however, and the allied opposition parties equally desire to oust the Government and to defeat one another. THE KIRIN INSURRECTION.

With fefere as to the reported insurrection in Kirin, or Central Marchuris, a notice of which appeared in these columns recently, it was at first thought that this was the result of the traders' strike last autumn in the prefecture of Ch'angis'un'u, occasioned by new arrangements of the likin service and the severe punishments suggested by the Military Governor, or, as he is sometimes termed, the "Tartar-General," Ch'ang Shiin. It now transpirer, however, that the insurrection in question arese from the local anthorities attempting to collect full land and poll taxes from ground which had become little more than bare waste, the scene of the troublesbeing some hundred miles or so distant from the city of Kirle, at a place or mountainous tract of land called Maoerhshan or Cap bill. Nearly Ir,000 insurgents are reported to be in arms, s large portion of whom are acknowledged to possess breech-leading guns, and who have deleated the Imperialists with great slaughter in several engagements. As a good deal of the territory which is now resisting the mandarins lies in the Mongolian section of Aokban, it is surmised that the Mongols are also implicated in the rising. It will perhaps be remembered that in the insurrection of the winter of 1802, at Chaoyang, which also apread to this section, the Mongols suffered severely at the hands of the savage Chinese, insurgent sectaries, and to protect themselves In the future against Chinese squatters, the £20,000, and that it has to lay out £6,000 for Peking government at the prayer of the Princes" of Aokhan and Nainar, granted a quantity of new arms of precision to the Mongol tribesmen there, This would account for the report that the present insurgents are well-armed with breechlouders which, with their superior numbers, have enabled them to, almost decimate the Imperialists who have so far been sent sgainst their, especially since the insurgents have been

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

I have recently paid a visit to Tahalsan, a lofty rocky islet standing out of the Poyang Lake. The hill is called the Great Boot Hill, from its resemblance to a Chinese shoe. From some positions it looks very much like a steamer, being high and sharp in front like the bow of a ship and lower and broad at the stern, and to complete the resemblance a high pagoda risés a little forward of the centre of the island which very well corresponds to a steamer's funnel. The water extends for 4 or 5 to 9 or 10 miles on either side to the shores of the mainland, which are either low or bounded by low hills. The island is a great resort for those who have favours to seek from the idols for it is a great Taolst stronghold. Steps have been cut with considerable labour and expense up to the summit, and all the way up are shrines containing more or less formidable idols. We saw several in process of making, the ingredients being a fewbamboos, half a dozen loads of clay, two baskets of sand, a few catties of straw, and a little water. These when fastened together would then command the reverence of all. A few idolaters who were with me were a little ashamed when they saw an idol in all its noked absurdity. Boats come over from the mainland at all times when the weather permits; we saw men going through the noisy methods of calling a god's attention. some young women also there came to beseech the gift of sons. The aged priest set tea and native sweetmeats before us to which we did justice. We then left him with some Holy Scriptures and cash | The pagoda was built, so the inscription in stone at its base says, in the reign of K'ang Hsl, some 230 years ago, with funds supplied by the bigh officials of the province under the direction of the Prefect of the neighbouring Ju the city of Nank'ang. It is now in a very bad state of repair and gradually falling to pieces. Loose stones and bricks ready to fall on the least occasion cautioned one that it would be wiser to stand out of reach. The temple itself is a fine building and its interior appointments are quite attractive. The rocks are worn into many fantastic shapes. We saw one immense boulder through whose centre a hole had been worn by behind the scene of how "missionary" rlots idiocy. sometimes originate and shows how entirely blameless are the missionaries. [At times: not always ?] His story was substantially as follows. A foreigner accompanied by some coolies carrying his baggage put up at an inn in Hunan. While there he picked up a stone lying shout smelt it, and then threw it away. This appeared to be a very suspicious affair, for why should a foreigner throw away that stone day. with disgust / Bystanders picked it up, examined and smelt it but could find nothing peculiar about it. Whereupon they broke it in two pieces and found it contained a dead crab! The foreigner could smell that crab through all that thickness of stone ! It was evident he had come to the country to hunt for precious metals and his wonderful powers would show him where they were to be found. There and then they raised the hue and cry and drove the foreigner out bag and baggage. So went the story, We were conversing with entire strangers, and the native related this to confirm a statement he had just made, that foreigners had this extraordinary power to see and know where precious siones were to be found. [How in thunder does this bear on the missionary question?] Your correspondent has frequently been accused of extracting dogs and horses of gold from the mountains, and stealing them. Even on this trip, while anchoied, I overheard some natives saying that we were there to capture a valuable white horse which roamed over the hills. They said it had been seen by many but we only could capture it.

The tea season does not seem to cause so much general excitement as last year. A number of native teamen have keptout of the business this season and there are only about half the number of hongs doing business this year as compared heard the native teamen's profits put as high as at tacls a balf-chest. I am told that in the tea districts many hills are not now cultivated. You reported recently in your columns that a Russian tea merchant had been severely besten in the tes districts. I do not have an doubt but that the native dealers are responsible for this. I know, for instance, that last year they put out proclamations all over the Woosin and Iling districts forbidding foreigners to buy, and threatening with death any native who should sell tea direct to foreigners .- N. The number of big insolvents who set forth in their schedules that they "are being pressed by the Commercial Bank of Australia, which is a creditor for a large amount," is a dismal fact for the reconstructed shareholder.

In Melbour e a few week since, in the case of M'Laughlin v. Bank of Victoria, an expensive Judge and sundry high-priced barristers decided that, when a man holds bank-shares as executor of a deceased person's catate, and is registered as such, the bank can't collar the shares as security for the executor's private overdraft, You wouldn't think such a case needed arguing.

A Southern bank which, six years ago, advanced £33,000 on a station property, finds No. 15, Queen's Road. that the market value of same is now but stock, &c., before it can even let the place.

A frecent Melbourne arbitration case over-£12,000 ended in claimants being awarded £3,100, and having to pay £2,400 costs ! The Queensland National Bank has £2,409,000 of Government messey looked up for reconstruction, besides £743,000 of money since entrusted to it to trade with.

A disputed will-case, heard in Sydney the other week, involved the sum of f. too. After the lawyers had been paid, the almost imperceptible balar ce was claimed as "commission."

G. R. Fearly, who went from Sydney to Manila four months ago to report on some alleged rich gold mines for a Spanish syndicate, has returned a sadder and wiser man. Fearly must be getting wearied of travelling long distances to see nothing. His previous trip was to New Caledonia, where a Sydneylte thought he had got a wonderful manganese mine.

So severely have the big storekeepers in the Victoria wheat districts been hit by the low price of wheat that most of them decline to give any credit whatever to farmers. Resulthundreds of men who formerly lived on the storekeepers' credit from seed-sowing to harvest, are abandoning their farms.

"Injustice may be done in two ways-by force or fraud, fraud being the property of a fox, force that of a lion; both are utterly repugnant to society, but fraud is the more detestable. But in the whole system of villainy none is more capital than that of the men who, when they most deceive, so manage that they may seem to be virtuous men."-Cicero on the inhabitants of Individual Melbourne insolvencies for £600,000, £400,000, £200,000, 100,000 within about 12 months.

Therefis still money in beer. The South Australlan Brewing Co. netted £31,317 last year.

A Sydney mis-constructed bank has decided to close ten of its suburban and country branches, Wholesale "sackings" of bank officials are imminent.

For the first time in several years the Melbourne Tramway revenue is looking up. Shares have risen to 7s. 6d., and that prospective call, which has been an awesome 'Dweller on the Threshold ' to every shareholder, seems to be indefinitely postponed.

M'Kinnon's demand (in N.S.W. Parliament) for a State audit of all banks coming under the the rain and through this a tree had grown to Bank Issue Act roused up Young, the dreary the height of some 15 or 20 feet. We also person from the Hastings and Manning elector. found there English garden flowers, such as the late, who remarked that "the Government might as well appoint auditors to examine all the While sitting on a rock we were joined by accounts of every individual in the community." some respectably dressed Hunanese and talked. Which would be very logical if the Government uson many subjects. One man told me of an proposed to make the I O U of every individual occurrence which resulted in some kind of riot in the community a legal tender, which the In Hunan. I do not remember where this is public must take entirely at its own risk. As it said to have occured, but it gives a glimpse from | doesn't propose this, the comparison is pure

> The City of Melbourne Bank made a nett brought forward, is good enough to pay 5 per cent, on preference shares-[815 in all-but not enough to go round the ordinaties. The common shareholders rely on the courteously expressed hope that their turn is coming-some | at the election, that is to say :-

Gideon's fleece was nothing to the heavenly moisture in a thirsty land offered by the Trust and Agency Co. of Australasia's 20 per cent, div. and 24 per cent. bonus. £37,500 to the reserve fund as well. If jealousy could kill, the Co. wouldn't linger ten minutes with all the stabs of "reconstructeds" in its vitals. For it must have thriven on others' losses.

A Southern magnate has just borrowed £150,000 on real estate, at 51 per cent., to pay calls on re-constructed bank shares.

A firm of pastoralists, whose liabilities amount o £557,000, privately offer 1s. in the £ com-

One Melbourne stock and share broking firm is liable for £ 1,000,000 in calls on shares which it bought in its own name, for clients who are now " men of straw."

An acutely virtuous British judge shuddered on his pedestal, last week, when he heard that New Zealand Loan and Mercantile directorate had toned down a certain report to prevent it with those engaged last year. The result is there is from being "too strong," This astounded the less competition, and those who have ricked their | guileless judge, who 'enquired, after recovermoney seem to be making big profits. I have ing his breath, " can the truth be too strong?"

> Shareholders at bank meetings should never forget to enquire how much of the assets has been mythically paid in for balancing purposes, The answer may be a diplomatic lie, but it is advisable to pin the chairman down to a good fat lie as often as possible.

. It is alleged in Melbourne that a syndicate of five brokers 'scooped the pool ' over the Metropolitan Board of Works loan, besides taking the kitty. Somebody got to know the Union Bank was to tender for £250,000 at par, and the dealers boldly bid for the balance of the loan at over par up to £100. ros. The public will have to buy from them, and the coup looks like being internal expenses of Friendly Societies are made | the biggest and best any " push " has yet made
